SAINT LUKE AND THE ASCENSION

Saint Luke is responsible for about one fourth of the entire New Testament. He wrote his Gospel (24 chapters) and also the Acts of the Apostles (28 chapters), the only inspired account devoted to the history of the early Church. Interestingly, Luke ends his Gospel and also begins Acts with an account of the Ascension of Jesus.

In the Acts of the Apostles Jesus makes a very important promise and prophecy for his followers: "You will receive power when the Holy Spirit comes upon you, and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem, throughout Judea and Samaria, and to the ends of the earth." (1:8) The prophet Isaiah had already prophesied the universal thrust of the Kingdom of God: "I will make you a light to the nations, that my salvation may reach to the ends of the earth." (49: 6)

This promise of bringing the Gospel to the ends of the earth provides the outline for the content of the Acts of the Apostles. The Gospel has told of Jesus' Ascension to the Father on Easter Sunday (Luke 24: 50 – 53). The Ascension that occurred after the forty days of apparitions by Jesus is the message of today's first reading. (Acts 1: 1 – 11)

Luke gives a simple description of the Ascension itself: "He was lifted up, and a cloud took him from their sight." (1: 9) The cloud in both the Old and New Testaments symbolizes the presence of God. In the Old Testament Elijah said to Elisha who had asked for a double portion of his spirit: "If you see me taken up from you, your wish will be granted; otherwise not." (2 Kings 2: 10) The apostles who see Jesus being taken up at his Ascension will receive the gift of the Spirit on Pentecost Sunday. (Acts 2: 1 – 4)

The angels promise that this Jesus "will return in the same way as you have seen him going into heaven." (1: 11) This is a clear reference to the Second Coming of Christ at the end of time. The book of Daniel says, "I saw coming with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man." (7: 13) During his public life our Lord had prophesied, "Then they will see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory." (Luke 21: 27)
